

DAWG PADDLE DERBY

Owners walk their dogs to the starting cages set up on a Lake Hartwell pier.

Racing is rapidly going to the dogs—coon dogs, that is—in the form of the annual "World Championship Coon Hound Races."

While coon dog race fans admit that their sport doesn't attract as many spectators as some other forms of racing, they seem to feel that it's only because outsiders haven't attended one of their races.

Anyone who likes dogs, they say, will enjoy coon hound racing. As a matter of fact, they claim, many who do come to the races for the first time soon buy dogs of their own so that they can join in the racing too.

Coon hound racing is not a new sport, even though the world championship races are just going into their fifth year. Hound enthusiasts across the country stage the races almost every weekend, particularly in the Midwest.

Last year's big race was held at Lake Hartwell on the south Carolina-Georgia border. This year, they'll be held on June 10, 11 and 12 at Romulus, Mich., west of Detroit.

A highlight of the affair is the water racing event. Hounds are entered in various divisions, according to breeding and size. They swim a 100-yard course toward shore behind a caged raccoon on a raft pulled by a hand-operated winch on the bank.

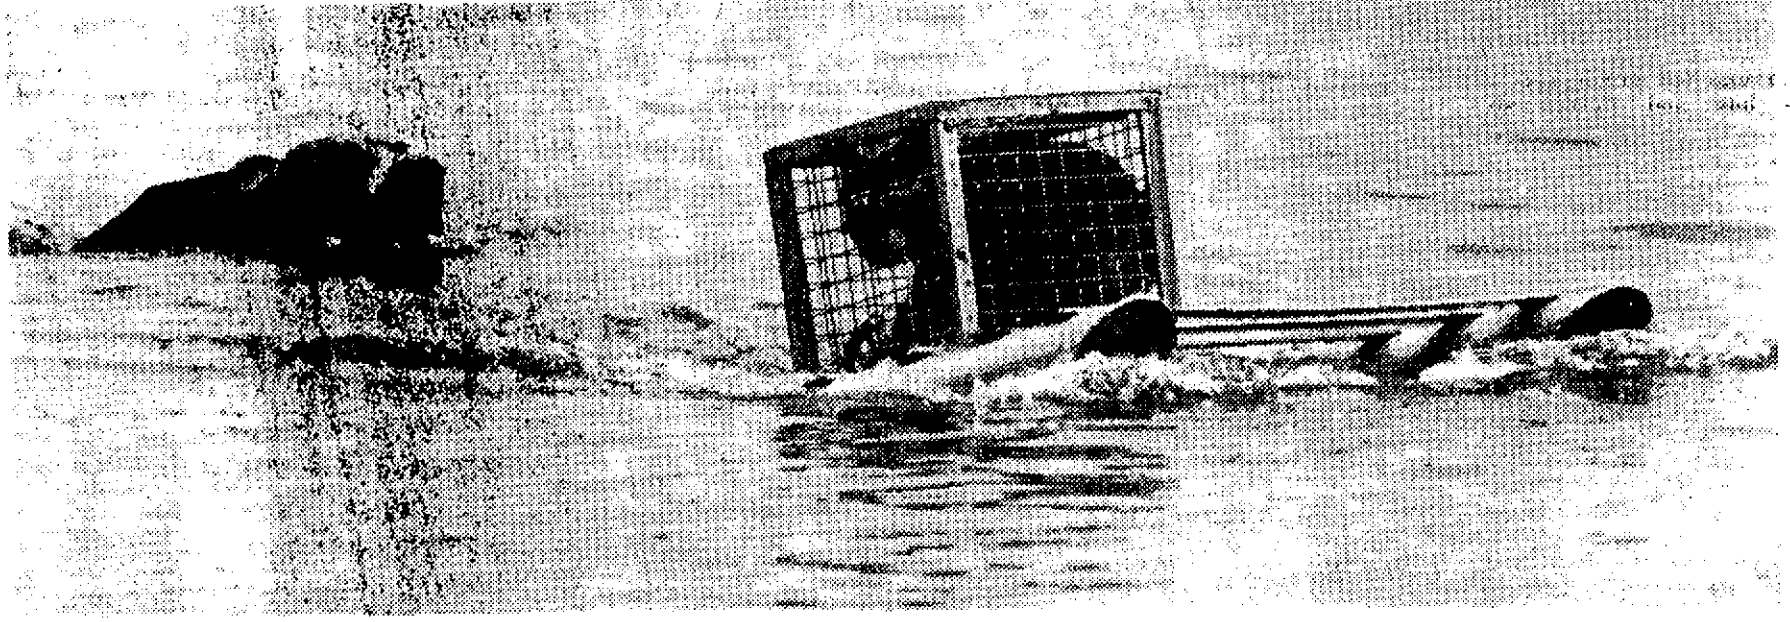

"There is absolutely no brutality involved," Jim Mathis, director of the Lake Hartwell races, said. "The dogs never touch the coon and we use more than one coon."

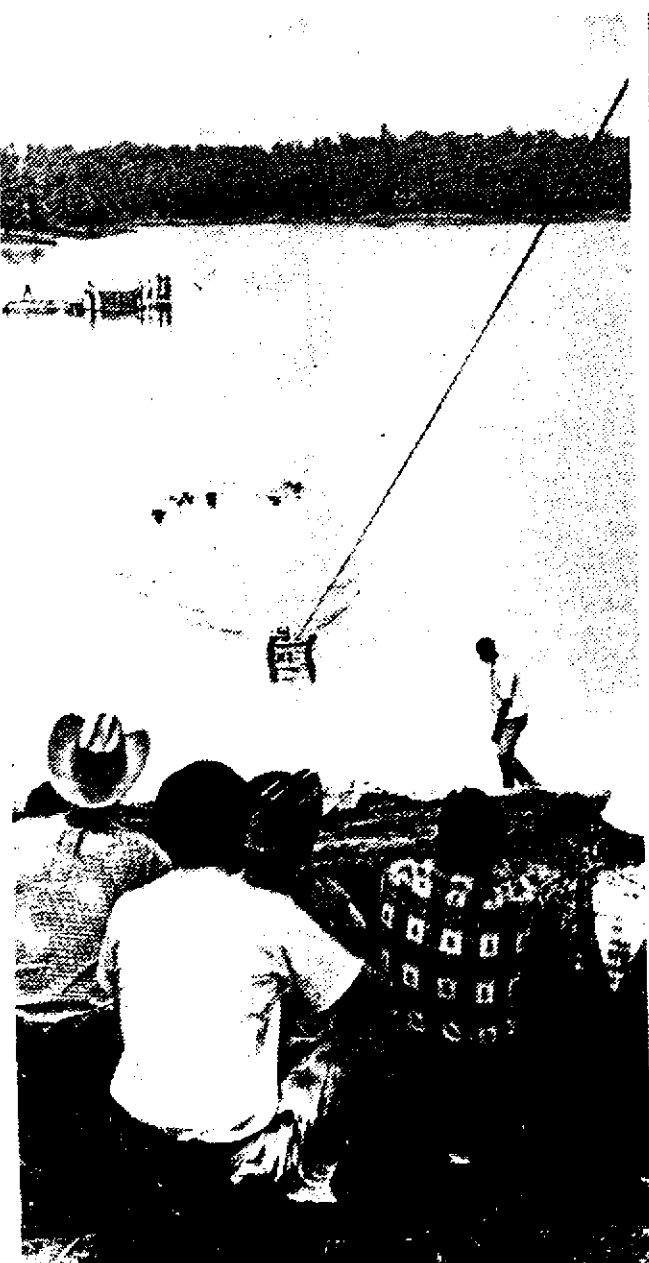

An anxious hound growls at caged coon before gates are opened to start race.

They're off! Barking hounds leap into the water in pursuit of the caged coon after the starter blows a whistle to open gates.

With the hound in close pursuit, a caged coon skims across the lake towards shore and the finish line.

Spectators near finish line watch progress of race as man at right winds up the winch.

A pack of numbered hounds races out of the water, following the winch-hauled raccoon.

The hounds leap up and bark at the caged coon, now hoisted up a tree. First dog to tree wins the race.

Win, lose or draw, this hound is still an affectionate hero to this lovely young lady.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Selecting popular television shows, sometimes before they are much more developed than an idea, once was considered to be a special art, even a gift. But now picking winners is becoming a science, with computers able to toss out predictions of future hits and misses six months in advance of their premieres.

One of the large advertising agencies — Kenyon and Eckhardt — has been experimenting with computer predictions for the past two years, with an estimated 67 per cent of success. In its third run, predicting the popularity of next fall's new

Shopping for Groceries Is Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housewives struggling with their mounting food budget can take this shopping hint from the President's adviser on consumer affairs: "You're not going in there for amusement. You can get romance somewhere else — cheaper."

"Grocery shopping," Esther Peterson, assistant secretary of labor, added in an interview today, "is a serious job to get done in the most efficient, economical way possible. Ignore the music. Read labels."

An Associated Press survey of 12 cities showed Tuesday that the cost of a typical week's shopping climbed nearly 7 per cent in the past year.

The AP housewife brigade concluded that the government price index fairly reflects a hard fact: it costs more to feed the family.

For housewives trying to save money, Mrs. Peterson, a mother of four and a specialist on shopping trends, has some ready advice:

1. Be a weekend shopper. Midweek prices range 7 to 10 per cent higher on many items.
2. Shop the specials. You can save 6 per cent on a weekly food bill of $30.
3. Plan your menus with an eye on the advertisements. Make a list. Follow it once you get in the store.
4. Avoid impulse buying.
5. Whenever possible, buy in quantity on sale. Buy cleanser this week, 10 cans of peas next week.
6. Shop alone when possible. Leave the children at home.
7. Test products. Buy one package each of four kinds of beans and compare them. Often, she says, store brands are just as good and cheaper.
8. Look for the lowest prices. You can knock $2 off an average $30 food bill by picking lower priced brands. Notice fluctuations.
9. Substitute foods: chuck for rib roast, dry milk for fresh, margarine for butter, poultry and fish for red meat, hamburger for steak, casseroles for meat dishes.
10. You pay high for convenience foods. Think: can I add the mushrooms cheaper? Maybe you don't even want mushrooms.

Freebooter Look

If you're looking for young fashion adventure you can sail in like a galleon under full sail. Pirate-inspired, swash-buckling, hip-hugging pants and skirts are teamed with wide-wide belts and enormous metal buckles. Fringe bottom shorts and sci-fi tops are mixed and matched with bold, broad stripes and bubbly polka dots.

Fashion hits the bull's-eye for today's small Annie Oakleys. Cowgirl dress of buckskin-colored cotton (left) has frontier fringe borders on the sleeves, bouffant skirt and pull-through tie. Wagon wheel buttons travel down the front of this design by Martha's Miniatures (Diaper Jeans) of Texas. Kingston of Texas (right) shows how the sandpail set can look ship-shape. A short shift sails crisply over matching shorts in a white lighthouse print on bright red or blue.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Each of us is the product of his environment. So it was no surprise to learn that actress Judy Lewis, who is familiar to television viewers as Susan Dunbar on CBS's "The Secret Storm," has an avid interest in fashion and home decorating.

For Judy is the daughter of a beautiful and elegant Loretta Young and the granddaughter of Gladys Belzer, probably the best-known decorator on the West Coast.

We lunched at Sardi's and Judy's love of the theater and its people was apparent. "I love this place," she said. "I can never forget how excited I was the first time I came here after an opening night performance. I stared at the celebrities like a kid would have. I had stars in my eyes."

Yet, enamored as she is with the theater, when Judy came to New York from California she chose to attend the New York School of Interior Design.

I asked if her grandmother's career had influenced her choice of school.

"Not consciously," she said. "I was sort of banished to a school on the East Coast because my family didn't approve of a boy I was engaged to marry in California."

"But at that time all I wanted to be was a wife. I decided to turn the tables on the family and to use the enforced separation to advantage. So I chose to study homemaking and decorating in preparation for married life."

Today in her Greenwich, Conn., home as the wife of an advertising executive, Joe Tinney, and the mother of 7-year-old Maria, Judy Lewis combines her successful acting career with her love of homemaking and so has the best of both worlds.

"I think any woman who doesn't know how to cook and sew is missing something. A well-rounded woman should know these things as

What's In A Name?

Trouble.

Dear Helen: Today I got a letter from my mother and she said "Fang."

I'll explain, but it will be hard. When I write to my brother (from college) we get kind of— Well we don't exactly write like a son would write to his mother. We kid around and we call Dad "The old party" and I guess I referred to "Fang" in a kidding way, because how else would it be but kidding?

Well my brother, who has no finesse and is bucking for a hit on the head must have told Mom what I said.

Her letter was just fine, as usual, and then at the end — "Fang." How can I tell her I meant it I wouldn't have said it? — Son.

Dear Son: She knows. Mothers of boys have a sixth sense about these things. Write her a long letter and sign it "De-Fanged Frever." — H.

Dear Helen: This is in response to "In Love's" letter. He didn't want to change — he who thinks she can rehabilitate just wanted to justify being the a hood with her "pure sweet" love. I hope she takes your advice in the Nick Of Time.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Battel in care of Hope Star.

Dear Helen: Here's my letter to "In Love." The boy I thought I loved was one of the worst punks in our town. He was 18, I was 15. He said I was the only one who could help him — by believing in him and trusting him.

My parents said absolutely "No," but I gave him all my love. When he got fresh I just smiled and walked away, except

The pretty, 5-foot-8 girl with sparkling green eyes has a definite interest in fashion and feels strongly that every woman worthy of the name should read the daily fashion pages and the fashion magazines.

"One can get a basic course in comparative shopping from fashion news," she said. "You learn to look objectively at a woman's figure, too, and soon find yourself studying your own with a critical eye."

The local newspapers, according to Judy Lewis, are a better guide than the magazines for the woman who wants to dress correctly for

God's Word

Says Come

The VERDICT!

Some things are so final. One of them is Judgment. But whether we like it or not, it is coming. The child at school knows a test is set — he must make ready for it. The man at his bench knows the work must get done, and on time. All life should help us face the coming verdict. The wise person gets the better of it by setting his own judgment at the close of every day.

Life is made up of years, of months, of days.

Why wait for luck or chance which might make an escape possible? YOU CAN'T BEAT THE VERDICT. God will allow you to reap only what you have sown. You write your own verdict... God announces it. Go to church every Sunday. Confess your sins to God. Write a clean page. Keep the record clear. Then the verdict will be well with your soul.

This Page Is Made Possible By These Hope Business Firms Who Realize The Importance of Our Churches In The Lives of Our People. They Urge You and Your Family to Attend Church This Week. So, "Come, Let Us Go Into the House of the Lord."

Ceramic 'Whiskers' Make Dental Materials Stronger

BY WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Much interesting information on dental research was presented at a recent meeting of the International Association of Dental Research. Much of it was aimed at the future, but here are some things you ought to know right now:

• Dr. Jess McCormick of Birmingham, Ala., reported that youngsters with infected or abscessed baby teeth can suffer damage to their permanent teeth, and the younger the child, the greater the damage.

Almost one out of four permanent teeth erupting under infected baby teeth shows some damage, such as pitted and lined enamel or white spots. Often the teeth grow in crooked.

• For a long time it has seemed clinically apparent that cancer of the mouth was associated with heavy drinking and smoking and poor mouth cleanliness.

Dr. Andrew Z. Keller, dental scientist with the Veterans Administration in Washington, reported that cirrhosis of the liver, which is significantly related to excessive use of alcohol, appears (with its partner tobacco) to be associated with cancer of the mouth and pharynx.

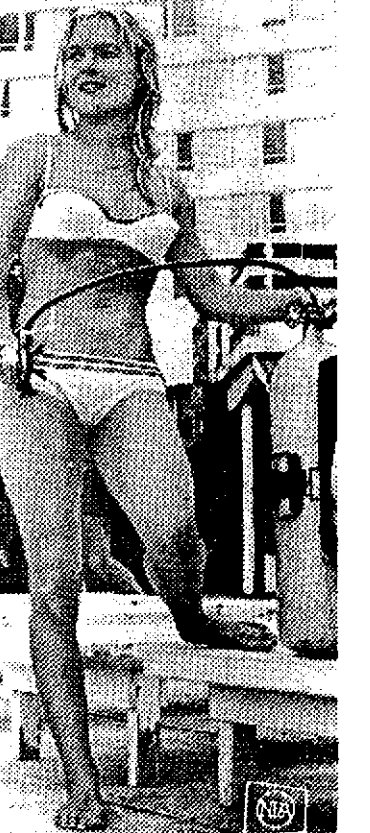

Not all cirrhosis is related to heavy drinking. Liver damage may result from infectious hepatitis or nutritional deficiencies, but Dr. K's investigation seems to indicate that cirrhosis from any cause may increase possibility of mouth cancer.

For the near future:

• Tiny ceramic "whiskers" added to dental materials increase their strength up to 150 per cent. False teeth reinforced with these fibers are more than twice as strong. This technique was borrowed from space-age technology where it's used to make rocket parts lighter, stronger and more heat resistant.

• Cancer of the mouth may soon be "cured" by freezing the tumor, according to Dr. F. G. Emmings of Buffalo, N.Y., by a process known as cryotherapy. Frozen tissue becomes devitalized, but healing soon begins in the healthy tissue around the tumor, and after some months new tissue replaces the "dead" tissue.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is a unique feature of the organ in the Luray Caverns in Virginia?
A—The "Cathedral" organ produces music from the stalactites themselves, creating a stereophonic effect from the different positions of the stalactites in the area.

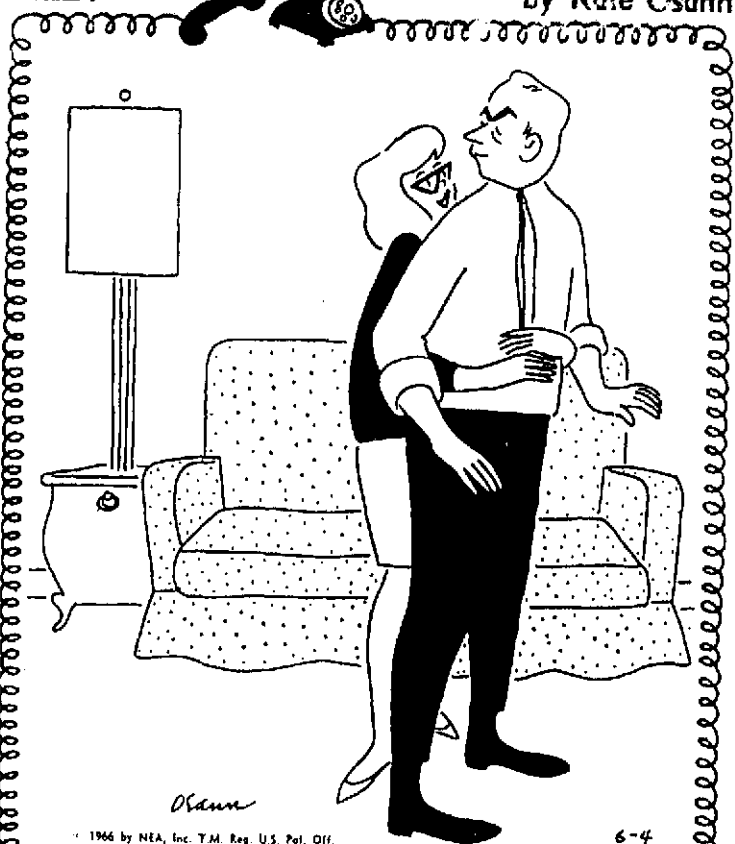

Q—How long do ants live?
A—Many spend the winter asleep underground. Worker ants may live as long as seven years, and queen ants as long as 15 years.

Q—Does paper, which is made out of wood fibers, shrink and swell like lumber?
A—No. Paper fibers are intertwined and point in all directions, while in wood they are more or less parallel.

Q—Did John Howard Payne write both the words and the music of the song "Home Sweet Home"?
A—He wrote only the words. The music is by Sir Henry R. Bishop, who adapted it from an old French folk-song.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Confident South Outthinks Self

By JACOB & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Too many cooks spoil the broth and too many precautions cost many a contract. North didn't have much of a spade raise but with the favorable diamond opening and the five of hearts return South should have had no trouble making his contract with an overtrick.

He started out beautifully by dropping his ten of diamonds on East's ace and winning the heart.

After this fine start all he had to do would be to draw trumps with two leads, lay down his king of diamonds, continue with the eight, discard his losing heart on the long diamond and concede a club trick.

This simple line of play was not only the winner but it was most logical because it was sure to succeed if West held the jack of diamonds irrespective of how trumps broke and would also win if trumps broke 2-2 and East held the diamond jack.

But South out-thought himself. Somehow or other it did not occur to him that East could have been dealt only one diamond. He could count 10 tricks if he could ruff a club therefore he led a club at trick three. West won with the ace and gave East a diamond ruff. East led back another heart. West took his king and gave East a second ruff for a two-trick set.

The actual diamond singleton was not an unlikely holding. West's three-spot lead was probably fourth best and it could just as well have been fourth of five as lowest of four. Furthermore, the odds were tremendously in favor of West holding the jack of diamonds. Had East held this card he probably would have played it at trick one.

Requiem for a Pitcher

By DAVE BURGIN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Jack Sanford speaks for all those like you can as a starter. And pitchers who won't make the here I am 37!

"Right now I'm 37 and just average major league pitcher's happy the Angels think I can career goes just about like be of some help. We're a club mine has."

"But I know that I'm in the shadow of my career. The ol' arm isn't what it used to be. Then, it never was great, or I guess sportswriters would be making a big fuss over a guy who is near the end of his career. Like they did for Warren Spahn the last two or three years."

"Spahn was a great one. He lost some of the glitter, though, by trying to hang on when he shouldn't."

"Me, I guess I'm like a hundred other pitchers who tried his damndest and did his best. We don't have to worry about 'going out in style,' because, really, who cares?"

"You just kind of go out, that's all. And when it happens to me I'll be sad about it but I'll be happy with my family, a few memories and a nice job I've got lined up."

"It is a funny feeling when the end comes into sight. All those years drag by so suddenly."

"I said I was happy being with the Angels. Well, that was the first clue. Being happy means being nervous, just like I was as a rookie for the Phillies in 1957."

"You think, 'Oh, thank God, I'm here.' And you're nervous as hell, sweating and trying to pitch your best. That first season went by, and what do you know? I'm Rookie of the Year."

"Now I'm a relief pitcher. Bill Rigney starts me in spots, but mostly it's going to be relief from here on out. And I'm more nervous than my rookie days."

"You come in with the bases loaded and you have to make your best pitch. You can't experiment, or just fire, like you can as a starter. And here I am 37!"

"From what I gather, the average major league pitcher's career goes just about like be of some help. We're a club mine has."

"First you come up as a highly touted rookie, what ever that means. You sweat and you try and you dream about being an immortal, but all the while you're gaining confidence, which is half the battle."

"I got traded early to San Francisco. It shook me a few days but then I righted myself. Then, in a few years you hear people are calling you a pro or a veteran. Your pitching levels off and if you are not great, you are at least consistent."

"Maybe you might sneak in a 20-game season. I was 24-7 with the Giants in '62. If

LONDON—(NEA)—A convict in one of Her Majesty's prisons and British troops on jungle patrol in Borneo will watch the World Cup soccer series starting here July 11.

The jailbird expects to be sprung for good behavior on July 29, the day before the World Cup final, and has already mailed $5.60 for a ticket. As for the jungle patrol, men of the Durham Light Infantry Battalion have been in Borneo for the past three years, but hope to arrive home in time for the World Cup kick-off. They have also written for tickets.

They will join 200,000 fans from 103 countries, from Aden to Zambia, who will converge on the British Isles for 32 matches of top-class soccer to determine the world championship team.

The gate money now totals over $4 million. All of the 10-match season tickets, which include a seat for the final match on July 30, were sold out by March 1. Matches will be played in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Sunderland, Sheffield and Middlesbrough.

Meanwhile, the British Isles are being plastered with posters and stickers featuring World Cup Willie, the cartoon lion who has been adopted as the mascot for the series. This amiable jungle king is also on sale in souvenir shops.

This is the first time that England, where soccer originated, has played host to the World Cup series.

Almost 5,000 Brazilians are expected here to cheer Pele, Rinaldo and the other almost-legendary players of their team.

The American contingent, all 895 of them, will be coming mostly from California and the New England states, although there will be fans

Hein is Back in Football

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Less than two weeks after Al Davis contacted him, Mel Hein found himself sitting in a brown-paneled Park Ave. office, a bit bewildered and a little awed at the frenetic activity in the American Football League headquarters.

It's a different town — and a different game — than the one Mel Hein knew 25 years ago when he was premier center in professional football with the New York Giants.

Those were the days before television and the forward pass revolutionized the style of pro football. It also was a time when attendance at the Giant games had not become the status symbol that it is today.

Instead of the Harris Tweed and Johnny Walker Black crowd, the old Giants depended on the pea-jacketed, White Mule group which showed because it enjoyed watching men like Mel Hein go 60 minutes.

Hein made the all-league team eight times and subsequently has been elected to the Professional Football Hall of Fame.

He met Al Davis, the AFL's new commissioner, when Davis was an assistant at the University of Southern California. Hein had a similar job there for the last 15 years. But when Davis called and offered him the job as supervisor of officials, there wasn't much hesitation.

"It took me a day," Hein said. "This man is a great organizer and he's very ambitious. Under his rule, this league will progress and that's why I'm here."

The rest of the staff at 280 Park Ave. talks about Davis the same way, as if he's the original combination of the Pied Piper, Horatio Alger and Sammy Glick.

Davis has promised his staff action and before Mel Hein could sharpen his pencils, there was the commissioner at the bridge leading the battle of invective against the National League.

The Giants had just signed Buffalo's Pete Gogolak, who had played out his option with the Bills. It was, some said, a declaration of "war."

"We didn't even have options," Hein said, smiling. "Very few players even got

"That's why the Yankees are so great," Mauch said. "They make a mistake only once every 10 years."

PHILADELPHIA — (NEA) — Somebody informed Gene Mauch that until the New York Yankees drafted pitcher Bill Kunkel in 1963, the present Phillies' manager had been the only Yankee draft choice in over 18 years.

"That's why the Yankees are so great," Mauch said. "They make a mistake only once every 10 years."

PHILADELPHIA — (NEA) — The American League always wondered what Tony Oliva would be like if he ever got 100 per cent healthy. Now it knows.

"He's a Ted Williams," spouted Billy Martin, the effervescent coach of the Minnesota Twins.

And when you arched your eyebrows, because after all Tony is only 25 years old and playing his third big league season with Minnesota, Billy elaborated, "He's a line drive home run hitter and a take-charge guy up at bat, the kind that managers want, because he's not waiting out the pitch to get to first base—he's gonna take it himself."

Manager Sam Mele of the Twins joined the chorus. Is Tony the best hitter in baseball?

"I would definitely say so," answered Sam. "Not only that, but he's the best player in baseball. Now we don't see that fella over in the other league too much, Willie Mays. But Tony can run, he's a fine fielder, he's a lot younger. And, of course, he's a great hitter."

Tony led the American League in batting as a rookie in 1964; he topped it again last summer as a sophomore. Oliva played his first two seasons with the middle finger of his right hand swollen almost double because of a bone growth that affected the grip on his bat. His knee collapsed on him last year. He submitted to operations for both injuries last winter. The results are apparent.

Tony's already on the way to a third straight batting crown. He's in that special category of untouchable, a player the manager doesn't mess with because tampering couldn't possibly improve the product.

"There was never any question," said Mele, "about his hitting. When he first came up, we had to work on his fielding of ground balls. He used to hold his right foot behind his left, and if a ball got past him, it was extra bases because he was off balance. But hours of practice with grounders in the infield straightened that out."

between you'm'me

NEW YORK (NEA) It seems innocuous enough. The New York Giants kick four out of 25 field goal attempts. So they sign Pete Gogolak, a displaced Hungarian placement kicker. Also unemployed, technically, as of May 1.

Well, no one figured the assassination at Sarajevo would embroil the world. When Cleopatra dallied with Mark Antony, she didn't realize how hot under the toga it would make Octavian.

I wouldn't rank Gogolak's desertion of the Buffalo Bills with the first shot fired at Fort Sumter, except in a symbolic way. The National and American football leagues don't even "recognize" each other.

But they're kidding themselves if they don't recognize this as the start of the hot war in professional football.

You'll hear rationalization on both sides. The AFL perpetrated the same kind of sneak attack when the Houston Oilers signed Willard Deweyell, late of the Chicago Bears, in 1960. The New York Giants grabbed Alex Webster after he played out his contract in Canada.

In the eyes of the law, these men were free agents. Just as Pete Gogolak was. Just as Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison still are.

But in actuality, and in the context of the times, it's signing of Gogolak is an invitation to full scale inter-league raiding. Will the New York Giants of the NFL make full restitution to the rival Buffalo Bills of the AFL for the services of the placekicker? Hardly likely.

Yet within the NFL, if a team has the temerity to sign a veteran who has played out his option, an exchange of equal value must be effected. Those ground rules were laid down when the Baltimore Colts had the guts to pick up R.C. Owens a few years ago after the veteran flanker quit the San Francisco 49ers.

My feeling is that the NFL took a gamble in signing Gogolak that isn't worth the possible consequences. When you stray in the area of enticement and seduction of talent, you're playing Al Davis' game. This is the forte of the new commissioner of the AFL and always has been.

Davis talks the language of the players. "The man approaches you on your own level," Art Powell once explained after he skipped from the old New York Titans to Davis' Oakland Raiders.

His reorganization of the league office has been geared to the recruitment of players, and there's no one better at it than the boss.

The NFL is just as vulnerable as the younger league when it comes to the number of malcontents. "There are unhappy players in both leagues," says Weeb Ewbank, who has coached in both and now has the bankroll of the New York Jets behind him.

Money is the weapon in this war, and both leagues come armed to the teeth with their big television contracts, booming ticket sales and well-heeled owners.

The shame is that a year ago at this time they were closer than a handshake to a merger. In fact, they'd already shaken hands on the deal, which was to include a $12 million indemnity payment by the younger league, to be split equally by the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers as the price for the encroachment of their sanctuaries.

Then an AFL owner-negotiator got to thinking about expansion to Atlanta, the $7.5 million his league would get and how this could be thrown into the fight for new talent. "Why give them any money at all?" he reasoned, and reneged on the oral peace covenant.

When Joe Foss blew the Atlanta bit (the AFL owners were to blame, too, for procrastinating), he really lost his job as commissioner right then. The hiring of Davis was the next step and a portent of the war between the leagues.

For Everybody's Freedom
Alabama made a bad law back in 1915, declaring it to be an offense "to do any electioneering or to solicit any votes" in any fashion on election day. Obviously, the intent was good. There are provisions in several states to bar importuning politicians from hounding voters right up to the ballot box or voting machine. But the Alabama law was unwisely restrictive.

It was applied in 1962 to the prosecution of Editor James E. Mills of the Birmingham Post-Herald because he wrote an election day editorial in his paper urging a vote for a change in the type of government Birmingham had, an issue being decided at the polls by the people.

A lower Alabama court threw the case out. It was reinstated by the Alabama Supreme Court. On appeal, the United States Supreme Court yesterday brought forth a ruling that the restrictive Alabama law unconstitutionally invades the right of free speech and press. The court decision was a sound and reasonable one.

The victory, however, does not belong primarily to Mr. Mills. Nor is it primarily of importance to the editors of newspapers throughout the land. The real importance is to the freedom of the American people.

We have always sought to emphasize that the Constitution's "freedom of press" guarantees are not provided to give newspapers special privileges; they are provided to give the people protection for their liberty.

Freedom of press is important because it gives people the right to speak freely on issues of government. We may be right. We may be wrong. But we, the people, are free to speak, within the bounds of truth and decency, and need not fear application of governmental power to silence us simply because of dissent.

Where totalitarian governments come to power, their first act usually is to cut off freedom of the press, which is merely a published extension of freedom of speech. Tyranny cannot stand free speech. American liberty cannot exist without it.

It is for this reason, not for one editor or all editors, that the decision in the Alabama case is important. It is a fresh reminder that freedom of expression lives in America, meaning that the people may use this as an instrument to maintain their liberty. — Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press.

Nuclear Sub Leaves Japan

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — The U.S. nuclear submarine Snook sailed from this Tokyo Bay naval base today after a five-day visit that touched off daily leftist demonstrations averaging 10,000 to 15,000 persons. Left-wing groups staged another rally Thursday night but only about 4,000 persons attended.

Battle of Wits at City Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Benny fought city hall in New York Thursday in a battle of wits with New York Mayor John V. Lindsay. Benny gave Lindsay a pair of tickets to an American Cancer Society benefit. The tickets were free, Benny said, because the city was on an economy binge. Lindsay then made Benny, famed as a make-believe miser, a city consultant on money-saving, at a salary of $1 a year. "I wouldn't take a cent less," said Benny.

Witnesses Were Pretty Potent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Thomas A. Clements, 45, of Tulsa, Okla., accused of drunken driving and transporting an open bottle of liquor, faced three witnesses against him.

Two were highway patrol troopers and the third was the governor of Oklahoma.

Gov. Henry Bellmon and his driver, Trooper Clint Derrick, stopped Clements Wednesday after following him in the governor's car. Trooper Tom Johnson arrested him.

Clements pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to six months in jail and a $50 fine.

OXFORD, England (AP) — Officials at Oxford University have decided the boys can't maximize their studies if the girls minimize their skirts.

Six Politicians

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A nationwide hunt was launched today for six prominent Buganda politicians who police said were "wanted urgently."

Authorities did not disclose why the men were sought, but presumably it was in connection with an independence movement led by the King of Buganda which the forces of President Milton Obote's central government crushed last week.

We are told the tevery dollar spent in Hope will turn over seven times before leaving our city. This emphasizes the importance of tourist trade to our local economy, and beginning next week the annual summer epidemic of travelers will receive a helpful shot in the arm by means of Tourist Information Booths placed at two entrances to Hope.

Begun as a Rotary Club project with Clyde Fouse at its helm, excellent response and co-operation of other organizations have turned it into a city-wide project, which is as it should be. Emblems of all participating groups will be placed on the outside of the air conditioned 10 foot square portable booths, which will be located near the Plaza Restaurant and Oaks Cafe at either end of the Highway 67 entrance to Hope.

Originally, the Rotary Club was looking for a way to help deserving college-age students from Hope and at the same time to let our community feel direct financial benefit from such assistance. Along came a federal government program which seemed like a solution, and that is the plan which will be put into effect next week. Students will be employed on a 40 hour week at $1.25 an hour for a total of $500 this summer. The government will pay 90 per cent of the salary and local organizations 10 per cent.

High school seniors and college students from Hope will maintain the operation of the booths. They will have literature about places of interest in and around Hope available for tourists. This will include information about all church services in our city, facts about our locality about which people are most apt to inquire, and a taste of Southern Hospitality at its best.

Signs are being erected to direct people to tourist attractions in our vicinity, but people will still want to ask direct questions about them, and the youngsters in the Tourist Information Booths will have the information readily available.

The success of the T. I. B. will depend on the personnel operating them, but the overall impression our town places up on travelers and potential visitors to Hope will rest with each and every citizen. Maintain a smile, or at least a pleasant attitude, and be willing to answer questions when a stranger inquires of you. Put yourself in his shoes, and you'll realize how much an air of congeniality boosts the spirits of an unknown person in a strange locality. Help him and he may come back. Shun him and the next time he may detour around Hope.

Rioting in Panama Is Broken Up

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian troops hurled tear gas Thursday night to break up a demonstration by students who accused the government of killing a leftist Panamanian student shortly after he returned from Moscow.

Extremist student leaders charged that government investigators beat Juan Navas Pajaro, 20, to death after he returned to Panama Sunday. His body was found early Wednesday near Colon, 50 miles northwest of Panama City. A coroner said he was killed by a blow on the head.

Minister of Government J.D. Bazan met with student leaders today and asked the attorney general to investigate the death. Government spokesmen denied that Navas had been in custody since he returned. They theorized that he was hit by a car or killed by a rival student group. His brother Luis is secretary-general of the Student Federation of Panama.

Navas reportedly spent eight months in the Soviet Union undergoing medical treatment. Student sources said he suffered a head wound in January 1964, when anti-American rioting over the Canal Zone killed 21 Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers.

German Miners Vote to Strike

BOCHUM, Germany (AP) — Coal miners in Germany's industrial Ruhr Valley voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to strike for higher wages if union leaders consider it necessary.

More than 182,000 miners and power workers in pits and coal processing plants took part in the vote. More than 88 per cent cast yes ballots. The miners are demanding an average increase of 8.5 per cent and pay for public holidays on which they don't work. Negotiations with employers broke down May 5.

Sonic Boom Study Gets Underway

By RALPH DIGHTON

AP Science Writer

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The most searching study yet of how people react to incessant bursts of noise from the sky now is under way at this "home of the sonic boom."

The world's fastest bombers and fighters — JB70As and YF12As, capable of 2,000-mile speeds planned for upcoming flights of supersonic transports—are hammering this 2,300-home desert community with deliberately generated booms and will continue for the next three months.

How the homes and their occupants stand up under the bombardment of man-made thunderclaps will have a major effect on the way planes are flown across populous areas of the Midwest—destined to bear the brunt when airliners now being designed start spanning the continent in two hours.

Edwards, which claims to be the first place of real estate to feel a sonic boom—on Oct. 14, 1947, when Col. Charles Yeager flew the Bell J1 faster than sound—is superbly conditioned to such cannonading.

With experimentally planes in the air virtually every sunlit hour and generating an average of 2,500 sonic booms a year, residents have become so used to window-rattling shocks they don't even look up.

If calloused ears such as these complain when BB70As streak overhead with airline regularity, government planners are expected to take steps to protect boom-shy Midwesterners in the years ahead.

What those steps will be depends on information gained in the detailed study. Runs at varying speeds and altitudes will be made by several types of craft. Volunteer test subjects will be asked which of the series of booms they found most objectionable.

From this, Air Force and U.S. space agency scientists hope to work out a speed and altitude profile which will make the planes acceptable to the majority.

Booms are pressure waves created when a plane, pushing and compressing the air ahead of them, exceeds the speed of sound — about 680 miles an hour at 70,000 feet. The waves trail downward behind the aircraft, causing an increase in normal atmospheric pressure.

These waves of overpressure make a noise when they hit the ground. The kind of noise, or boom, depends on size, speed and shape of the aircraft, the temperature and density of the air.

Something happens to the waves when they move down from the cool, clear upper air into the hot, dirty air near the surface. Just what happens is not known, but better understanding of what booms are like before they are altered by the lower air could result in changes in aircraft design or indicate the least objectionable times of day or night for supersonic flight.

Gemini Pilots Preparing for Record Walk

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 9 astronauts prepared for more rendezvous exercises with a troublesome satellite today and set their sights for a record space walk.

Meantime, Gemini 8 astronaut David R. Scott was reported by NASA officials to be in Los Angeles, Calif., investigating procedures by which the spaceborne astronauts might be able to work loose a hung-up shroud on the satellite.

Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, awake around 3:25 a.m. (EDT) and started preparing their spacecraft for are- rendezvous with the augmented target docking adapter—ATDA.

The exercise called for moving to within a few feet of the ATDA to practice a maneuver that might have to be made to rescue two astronauts who have started a descent toward the moon and decide for some reason not to land.

In such a case, a third astronaut in the main Apollo ship would have to drop down from lunar orbit to pick them up.

NASA officials did not say who Scott was meeting in Los Angeles, but indicated he was investigating methods by which the hung-up shroud on the ATDA might safely be removed by Cernan during his space walk.

The Gemini spacecraft cannot dock as planned with the ATDA unless the shroud is removed.

The Gemini 9 astronauts were given updated figures on their position with relation to the ATDA and are scheduled to maneuver to within a few feet on the satellite at around 6:40 a.m.

Thinks GOPs Has Plenty Candidates

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thurston B. Morton expressed belief today Republicans will have plenty of potential presidential candidates in 1968 if the party makes as good a showing as he thinks it will in elections this fall.

Thus, Morton, former GOP national chairman who now is the Republicans' Senate campaign chairman, didn't think Gov. William W. Scranton's surprise withdrawal from the future political scene left an open field to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon or Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

Neither has announced any intention to try for the Republican presidential nomination in 1968. But Nixon and Romney are the most often mentioned possibilities for the GOP sweepstakes, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, like Scranton, has dropped out.

Morton said "there's no use speculating on 1968 until we get through with 1966 and see how the leadership develops."

"After the defeat we took in '64, at the state as well as the national level, we must show some signs of life to develop the interest that would encourage someone to step forward and carry the banner."

"If we make the gains I think we will make this year and there will be plenty of candidates for the nomination."

Rockefeller told a Washington news conference "there's no question that Scranton could help Romney toward the 1968 presidential nomination by announcing support of the Michigan governor."

In Lansing, Mich., Romney said Scranton is "well qualified to serve in important national capacities. Even though he has indicated he will not again stand as a candidate for elective office, I am hopeful he will continue to contribute in strengthening the Republican party and in serving the nation."

Pennsylvania's Sen. Hugh Scott, who had been reported in some circles as leaning toward Romney, said he was very sorry Scranton had removed himself from the picture. Scott, like Morton, is a former GOP national chairman.

British Building Ships for U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The deal for Britain to build ships for the U.S. Navy to offset the cost of buying American F111 swing-wing bombers has run into trouble, a Defense Ministry spokesman said today.

British shipyards were competing for bids to build an unspecified number of minesweepers for the United States, he reported, but the U.S. Navy's Bureau of Ships has suddenly withdrawn the call for bids.

The Troubled Turks Will Vote Sunday

By HAL MCCLURE

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The troubled Turks, locked in an ideological war that has sharply divided the nation, will show Sunday how they view the conservative leadership of Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel's Justice party.

The Justice party is dominant in peasant Anatolia as the heir of the now outlawed Democrat party of the executed Premier Adnan Menderes. It is the heavy favorite in elections for 90 seats in the 185-member Senate.

Political experts predict Demirel's candidates may win as many as 30 Senate seats. The major opposition, the Republican People's party of former Prime Minister Ismet Inonu, may take about 15, with splinter parties dividing the remainder under proportional representation.

As in most Turkish elections, the senatorial campaign has been marked by bitter wrangling, name calling and charges of "extremism" — both left and right. The Cyprus question was shoved into the back ground.

Demirel defended his legislative program, which has all but come to a standstill because of opposition tactics in the National Assembly.

The prime minister, 41, has painted a rosy future for the Turks, provided the nation can forget the past and pull together.

The opposition parties criticized Demirel's rule since the Justice party took power last October, lashing out particularly at his handling of bread-and-butter issues and his attempts to change the electoral laws to favor smaller parties.

Demirel also has been accused of selling out the country to capitalists and foreigners and of using the Moslem religion to turn Turkey away from the reformist principles of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, the nation's first president.

The 80-year-old Inonu labeled the Justice party the "caravan of guilt" — an obvious reference to Menderes who was toppled by the 1960 army revolution and later hanged for crimes against the constitution.

An ideological clash of the left and right has been worsening since 1964 when Turkey under Inonu adopted a more neutral foreign policy. Disappointment with the West over Cyprus was the cause.

The left is the movement, stagnant for years, took heart. Attacks against America and military alliances became common among the student, press and intellectual groups.

The Justice party, running hard on an anti-Communist platform, swept into power last October in the General Assembly elections — mainly supported by the normally Russian-hating peasantry.

Turkey has been in virtual turmoil since.

Current Purge May Hit Some Top Commies

By EUGENE LEVIN

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China hinted today the country's current purge of dissidents might strike down even some of Mao Tse-tung's closest and oldest comrades.

An editorial in the official Peking People's Daily showed the purge had swept up the Chinese capital's mayor, Peng Chen, once considered a possible successor to Mao.

Peking announced Friday Peng had been replaced as first secretary of the Peking Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party.

The People's Daily provided the accusation against him: "Some leaders of the former Peking municipal party committee were not Marxist-Leninists but revisionists."

Those words made it clear that Peng Chen had been fired. It removed any possibility the might have been replaced because of health or some other reason.

Perhaps most significantly, the editorial warned:

"Anyone who opposes Chairman Mao Tse-tung, opposes Mao Tse-tung's thoughts, opposes the party's central leadership, opposes the proletarian dictatorship, opposes the Socialist system, whoever that may be, however high may be the position and however old his standing, he will be struck down by the party and by the people."

There was no further comment to indicate whether the warning was specifically aimed at some leader even higher than Peng Chen.

It was bound to increase recent "vague speculation" that someone of the stature of Premier Chou En-lai might be the target of the current purge, possibly Communist China's biggest since the Reds took over the mainland.

Peng Chen, was not named in the editorial or the announcement of the shakeup of the Peking Communist party committee.

A communique simply said that Li Hsueh-feng, 60, first secretary of the North China party committee, had been named Peking party first secretary. Peng Chen had held that post since 1955.

The charge of "revisionism" leveled against the Peking party committee he headed involves the most serious sin in Chinese Communist eyes. It means in effect that he has been accused of betraying Mao for the Soviet Union's brand of communism.

Scranton Has No Reason Not to Run

By JAMES MARLOW

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton gives no reason for his decision never to run for public office again—including the presidency—but perhaps it is because he is not "stirred up."

This was the reason he gave in 1964 for not seeking the Republican presidential nomination, which he later tried for after changing his mind.

But he sounds more positive now than when moderate Republicans teamed up behind him in an attempt to keep Barry Goldwater from the nomination. It's doubtful his chances in 1968 would be better than in 1964.

He was the reluctant dragon of Republican politics that year when New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was the only Republican who really put up a fight to try to stop Goldwater.

Then Rockefeller failed, Scranton had to be practically pushed into opposing Goldwater, and then he got massacred.

His announcement on Thursday that he was permanently out of the national picture came 11 days behind a similar one by Rockefeller who said he was out of the presidential running "forever."

In the past Rockefeller, Goldwater and others at one time or another disclaimed any presidential desires, only to switch around. This time it sounds final with both Rockefeller and Scranton.
